Sorter5 Heavy Crack

Sorter5 Heavy is a relatively new app that was created to provide a centralized mail exchange server for multiple mailboxes that can be found in multiple providers. With Sorter5 Heavy users will be able to extract the full mail exchange server's content, sort the messages, and save the results to their desired local destination. The process begins by connecting the app to a mail exchange server, generating a list of available mailboxes that can be found within the selected server. After the data is loaded, the sorting process can be activated in order to organize the messages according to the criteria that was specified by the user. During the sorting process, the app will save the final results to local drives, with the user having the option to clear the result and send the emails back to the server in one single batch. Once the data is successfully saved, users will be able to start over and create another sort criteria. With the option to run multiple sorts, at the same time, the app allows users to connect to multiple mailboxes from the same mail exchange server. The app will also have the option to create filters in order to further organize the results. During the installation process, the app also has the ability to install a backup and restore feature that will allow users to backup the mail exchange server data to local drives, in the event that there is an issue or the mailbox data is corrupted. When the sorting process is done, users will be able to view a list of the messages and have the option to export the data to their preferred local drives or clear the results.
